

Criminology Collection

Bridging research and practice in criminology, criminal justice, and security

The Criminology Collection supports those pursuing careers in criminal justice or law enforcement. It also supports rigorous research on the causes, trends, and societal impacts of crime through indexing and full-text coverage of scholarly and trade titles on criminal justice and related topics.

It includes National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS) Abstracts Database, which is published by the Office of Justice Programs, U.S. Department of Justice, to index research on criminal justice. The collection includes further index and full-text coverage of scholarly journals along with correctional and law enforcement trade publications, crime reports, crime blogs, and other relevant material for researchers or those preparing for careers in criminal justice, law enforcement, and related fields.

Subject areas include:

- Addiction
- Corrections administration
- Criminal justice
- Criminal law
- Criminology
- Cybersecurity
- Family law
- Homeland security
- Law enforcement
- Rehabilitation

The Criminology Collection bridges the latest research with practice:

- Geared towards scholars and career professionals focused on criminal justice.
- Sources covered include U.S. and international scholarly journals; correctional and law enforcement trade publications; reports; news; and crime blogs.
- Includes key titles such as the American Journal of Criminal Justice, the Journal of Criminal Law & Criminology, and Policing from publishers such as Palgrave Macmillan, Springer Nature, Cambridge University Press, Emerald Group Publishing, and Johns Hopkins University Press.
- Suited to vocational courses for those pursuing careers in law enforcement and security as well as those conducting academic social scientific research into criminal justice.
- Includes over 10,000 dissertations on criminal justice topics, unavailable from any other vendor.
- The ProQuest thesaurus, which includes hundreds of terms specific to criminal justice topics in its controlled vocabulary, helps users quickly find relevant results.
