

Amplify your graduate research with ProQuest Direct Publishing

ProQuest
Dissertations
& Theses
GLOBAL

Why Be Included?

Students can join a global research community: ProQuest Dissertations & Theses Global (PQDT) database is used by over 4 million researchers at over 3,100 institutions across over 65 countries.

Students retain sole copyright: Authors complete a publishing agreement with ProQuest with rights management on the part of the institution

Deep usage insights: Detailed visualizations and statistics, as well as the datasets behind them, are available to all contributing universities. Our Dissertations Dashboard shows usage of your dissertations by title, subject, and geographical location.

Preservation in perpetuity: All works on ProQuest Dissertations & Theses Global (PQDT) are archived with ProQuest's digital preservation initiative.

Students Contribute Directly

Students can log on to the ProQuest Digital Publishing site, enter their information, and upload their final manuscript for review by a ProQuest administrator. All instructions and guidance are at their fingertips. Best of all, the site requires no management by your institution.

Quick, Easy Submission Process

The ProQuest Direct Publishing site is an easy and intuitive way for authors to contribute to ProQuest Dissertations & Theses Global. Once submitted and approved by our editorial team, authors will achieve optimal visibility for their scholarship. If authors have questions or need support, ProQuest has a dedicated support team that can be reached by phone, chat, or email.

Reach over 4 million
researchers

Students can get started at etdadmin.com/pqdirect
or scan the QR

about.proquest.com

ProQuest®
Part of Clarivate